

list of five (5) different methods that people currently use to communicate with each other in a professional manner

Verbal communication: Speaking with someone directly, whether in person, on the phone, or via video conference, is known as verbal communication.

Written communication: this covers memoranda, reports, emails, and documentaries.

Non verbal communication: In professional conversations, body language, gestures, and facial emotions are all important.

Listening: One essential communication skill in the workplace is active listening. It entails paying close attention to what people are saying, seeking clarification when necessary, and demonstrating empathy.

Visual Communication: this comprises infographics, graphs, slideshows, and charts that improve comprehension and involvement.